covered early today, bringing the death toll to 24 in the crash Friday night of a huge B-36 bomber on its way in to a landing at the Ellsworth air force base

The public information office said the three other crew mem bers aboard the smashed ship "very critical" condition at the base hospital.

Roaring flames from the ship's outsized fuel tanks kept searchers and firemen from the fuselage section of the broken until about 7 a.m., when the last bodies were taken out.

TRAINING FLIGHT

The plane, largest of pro-peller-driven bombers in the U.S., took off from the base Friday on what was to have been a routine training flight.

The wreckage was scattered widely over a quarter mile area, one officer reported. He described the weather as "perfect" at the time the ship was to have landed.

Officers said the plane apparently struck a small hill as it approached the lengthy runway, burst and caught fire within seconds. It came down about a mile and a half from the base on the ranch of Alfred Swallow,

Swallow and his son, Harold, said they were about to retire when they felt a "concussion which shook the ground." They saw flames light up the sky immediately and drove to the arrangements between the logging interests and the Government are made known.

One suggestion has been advanced that the highly desirable West Coast roads will be a bonus thrown in by the timber interests for forest management licences granted. If they are bonuses, then they can be financed in one or both of two ways. Either the private companies will meet their costs by lowering their profits on timber. Or the eventual purchaser of lumber will pay for the highway construction by meeting a higher price for lumber at the consumer's level.

Another suggestion has been made that the public may pay a large share of the costs by certain concessions granted to the timber interests in the agreements. That, at this point, is supposition only. But, if it is justified, it could lead to the suggestion that British Columbia might find it cheaper to build the roads out of public funds than to pay for them in trees.

Forest Management Licenses

The whole project involves the policy by which forest management licences are granted. Primarily the purpose of such licences is to promote the sustained yield principle in British Columbia forestry. Seventeen such licences have been granted to date. The basic form of a licence is public property. There is no mystery about it.

Customarily, the holder of certain private timber approaches the government with a request for a forest management licence.

"This is a class of case which ordinarily would call for a whipping set only a third of it. Chief beneficiary is the gov. ernment, which imposed death duties of £2,300,000.

The same situation applies on the Renfrew projects:

Goodness of Heart?

These roads might be turned over to the Government for public use through the goodness of heart of the loggers. It seems more probable that they will be strong bargaining points for favorable terms for forest management licences.

The latter view would revive the question of financial responsibility for highway construction and maintenance—an issue absorbing the interest of not only the Railway Association of more pomp than usual for royalty will be watching.

The Duchess of Kent, who Friday sent the CNE towards what officials say may be its greatest success, will take the salute today as Canada's armed forces and veterans march on Warriors' Day.

"We have not forgotten the sacrifices made by Canadians during the war," the duchess aid Friday in opening the 76th annual CNE, "the fact that over a million men and women from this country were at our side throughout those years.

"These were gestures of real friendship, and I am glad that"

Barometer Rising

ATTHIS TIME LAST YEAR THE United States had entered a marginal recession and, in the opinion of many eminent economists, was about to lurch into a major depression. It was also commonly predicted that, at best, the experience of 1949 could not be prevented—a drop of some ten per cent in the rate of American business activity would prove ruinous to the outside world. In the contemporary climate many Canadians undoubtedly believed that their great national optimist, Mr. C. D. Howe, at last had slipped in forecasting sunny weather for 1954.

But on the eve of autumn the economic weather is sunny by any reasonable standard; 1954 is turning out to be a year of high prosperity; its production and consumption of wealth in America is higher than ever, except in the peak year of 1953; and the non-dollar world is doing better than at any time since the war. The prophets of doom once more have been discredited. Mr. Howe was not mistaken.

A few days ago President Eisen-hower (who feared an economic calamity only six months back) nounced officially the end of the recession. "The paramount fact about the economy at mid-year," he said, "is that the recent decline in economic activity has come to a halt." Even allowing for the natural optimism of a government facing a difficult Congressional election, Mr. Eisenhower's verdict appears valid. It is supported by a series of impres-

To understand the existing situation one must compare it to conditions prevailing two years ago, be-fore the 1953 boom. This compari-son shows the following facts:

American industrial production has increased by 3.3 per cent; gross national product (including both goods and services) by 4.4 per cent; non-agricultural employment by 1.1 per cent; the people's personal income (after taxes) by 8.8 per cent; per capita disposal income (allowing for growth of population) by 5.3 per cent; bank accounts by 10.2 per cent.

Every one of these indicators," the President says, "shows a rise, and some of the increases are not small. Since 1952 was the best year before this Administration took office, it follows that economic activity of late has been higher than at any time before this Administration assumed responsibility. And since 1953 was a still better year than 1954 is turning out to be, it follows that the overall performance of the American economy thus far during this Administration has been better than during any previous time.

These, of course, are the words of a party leader on the eve of a vital election. They put the best possible face on things and they minimize certain weak spots in the American economy, where various industries are adjusting themselves to more competitive conditions.

When all allowance is made for political exaggeration, the fact remains that North America is enjoying abundant times, a very brief recession is lifting and no serious depression is in sight. A continent conditioned by the climate of 1953 may not appreciate its good fortune, the non-dollar nations may rightly regret some unwise American trade policies, but the disaster so glibly forecast only a year ago has not occurred and once again the communist timetable is out of joint.

This does not mean, of course, that there are no economic problems in America today. There are great problems in high-cost industries that must get their costs down or lose their customers, in agriculture burdened by surpluses and in certain local pockets of unemployment.

The over-riding fact is nevertheless clear-a situation which appeared very dangerous as late as last spring has been safely passed and the economic barometer has begun to rise after a small and brief dip.

Light in the Depths

CANADIANS, WHO RECOGNIZE the vital and heroic role played by their navy in Atlantic of duty during the Second World War. have every reason to appreciate the potential danger of submarines particularly the modern types being produced in quantity for the Red Fleet.

Postwar development of the un-derwater craft has added to the threat such vessels would become in the event of future global hostilities. In view of this obvious danger, the report presented by Representa-tive R. Walter Riehlman, of New provides encouraging reading.

After exhaustive study by scientists, the report states, the U.S. Navy 'can now see its way clear to bringing the anti-submarine problem into against hostile underwater craft has been designed remains a matter which peace-loving peoples hope will not be put to the ultimate test. At all events the Riehlman eport relieves to some degree sense of near-helplessness should the vessels again move against the shipping of this continent.

That, in itself, is a major boost morale. It is accompanied by another encouraging development. According to reports on the work of scientists engaged in the anti-sub-marine project, some of the constricting bonds of impregnable secrecy between different departments were removed in the process of investigation and study. Authorities were permitted freedom to exchange ideas,

They conducted their work under a roof of security, to be sure. But there was light under the roof. They were not left to fumble blindly under a blanket, as appears to have been the case in certain other scientific efforts of recent date. An extension of this freedom could do a great deal to relieve men of science of the frustration created by an official distrust which has put blinkers on those engaged in other projects of top defensive priority in the United States.

Stratford, Victoria and a Difference

1 tion has announced a grant of $40,000 to the Shakespearian Festival of Stratford, Ont.

In this way further international recognition, in a most helpful form, has been given to one of Canada's outstanding cultural developments. The grant, incidentally, was made on the basis of a proportional foundacontribution equal to half the funds raised from Canadian sources.

is gratifying to note the domestic and international support extended to the Stratford project. Canadians may well be proud not only of the Ontario centre's achieve-

The circumstances draw pointed attention to civic procedure in Victoria relative to cultural development. Here the Arts Centre and the symphony, among other agencies, been seeking assistance from the lower levels of government. apparently the Stratford spirit has failed to penetrate this far west.

Greater Victorians have a right, as Canadians, to feel a certain pride in the Shakespearian festival. They cannot experience a similar sentiment as they regard official support for local cultural efforts.

tion of the farmer in the nations' economy. Obviously, all off-the-farm workers are "beholden" to our primary producers for the indispensable services they render. On the other hand it is often interest-but there is one piece of common ground which, in the opinion of some expert observers, more than 95 per cent of these hungry people will be found in or on— namely, a sort of built-in unconcern as to the source of these "good things to eat." In other words, the farmer has sel-dom a place—other, perhaps, than being taken for granted—in the minds of these city folk; though I think it is accurate to say that our lives depend upon him?

I am not wise enough to carry this social and economic ball any further but I find food for thought in pondering the two current trends; i.e., industrial decentralization, which I take to imply smaller cities and more of them; while the application of mechanical power along the agricultural front, seems to be pointing in the opposite direction, i.e., larger farms and fewer.

My understanding is that there are 100,000 fewer farms in Canada in 1954 than there were in 1940!

Summer Calm

LOOSE ENDS

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

The Lost Summer

DR. HURD WILLET, of the Massa-Chusetts Institute of Technology, has announced that the northern hemisphere is getting colder. It warmed up until 1939, Since then it has been cooling off and will continue

Dr. Willett's findings have caused a great flap in the United flap "in cool for the next 15

through this ghastly summer

IN modesty I must state that I had long ago completed a climatic measu ago competed a climate measure-ment, just as accurate as Dr. Willett's, merely by calculating my woodpile. Any wood chopper has known for years that another ice age is under way and has prepared accordingly. Dr. Willett, a theo-retical observer, no doubt will be happy to hear that his conclusions are confirmed to hear that his conclusions are confirmed

Every season the fireplace of every camp on this coast eats more wood. More-over (and this is a point which Dr. Wil-lett and the other theorists are not likely to understand) every season the wood becomes harder to cut, its grain tougher, its weight heavier and its heat content A few years ago the young camper could cut enough fuel before breakfast to last all day. Now in his old age he must spend most of the day to find the means of cooking breakfast. Assuredly someof cooking breakfast. Assuredly some-thing fundamental is happening to the northern hemisphere.

WE must prepare ourselves, says Dr. Willett, for old-fashioned winters such as our grandfathers knew and for colder summers. Well, we are prepared on this coast. Anyone who has lived through this summer (if one may laugh-ingly use that word) should be prepared for anything.

The simple fact seems to be that for some time now we have enjoyed abnorsome time now we have enjoyed abnormal heat and have taken it for normal. In the early days hereabouts winter snow was expected, and nobody thought much about it. Governor Douglas cut a road from Burrard Inlet to the Fraser at New Westminster because the river mouth was often frozen against navigation. Every sensible settler kept a sleigh handy and the woodshed full. Nobody in my youth went outdoors after October without woollen underclothes.

LL that was changed by a deceptive A LL that was changed freak of climate. For a brief time, between the end of the ninteenth century and the end of the existing world 1939, the weather warmed up, the li of permanent frost retreated northward across the Canadian tundra, woollen un derwear went out of fashion even in Win nipeg, the early Norsemen's villages in Greenland emerged from the ice and the wood chopper of these parts took it easy. Like so many other hopeful things in this modern age, the improvement proved brief. We are getting back to normal, as anyone can see by one glance at my shrunken autumn woodpile

THE experts of Gonzales Observatory are inclined to minimize these changes. They will tell us, no doubt, at the year's end that our warmth and sunshine have been about average. Of course they have been average by the measurement of meteorological instruments, but this is no true measurement. I do not question the skill and integrity of the experts, I assume they know what they are doing with their available tools and I find them only too accurate, diabolically accurate, in their daily predictions. I contend only that they do not know how to measure the weather.

It is not measurable with scientific address, and can power be added up in gadgets and can never be added up in figures. For it does not live on the sur-face of the earth or within government observatories; it lives within men and no one so far has managed to measure them.

A SUNNY day, as recorded by the experts, may be black with storm and dank with rain for the man who happens to be out of sorts. A day when the sun never shines at Gonzales may be brilliant to the private philosopher. Even this summer may have looked tolerable to persons who don't chop their own wood.

Anyway, we had better get used to this kind of weather, for it is going to last some time, fifteen years at least. Many of us may never see a good summer or a mild winter again,

SO MUCH DEPENDS ON THE LION

Sugar in the Teacups in Peiping

THE man who sticks his head in a lion's mouth is indulging in a foolhardy practice. But he may learn some-thing valuable about the lion's teeth.

That appears to be the main—perhaps visit of British Opposition Leader ment Attlee and his group of Labor Party members to Red China.

The hazard is not that their heads will be bitten off—not, at least, by their communist hosts. But the friendly tour comes at a moment when British-United States relations are strained, and part larly over the question of Red China. For these highly placed British legislators to become the smiling guests of Moscow and under such circumstances appears to have been an instance of very bad timing, to say the least.

POSITIONS OF POWER

The Communist Party was not limited in strength to just its membership. The strength of the party lay in its contacts and its infiltration into various positions of power, for the Communist Party achieves its policy by infiltrating the im portant positions of public opinion, educa-tion, labor. Probably its most important contacts with the mass of people in America was through its power in the making boards of organized labor

Motives and Results

The Liberal-inclined Star hoped the visit would "open the door to better East-West relations." And it saw that resulting information might be of value the United States as well as Britain.

Daily Mirror was less optimistic. V conceding that the best of motives had inspired the visit to Peiping, it deplored the surprise and mistrust that would be aroused across the Atlantic.

In many quarters was heard the opin-ion that the Attlee party should round out its journey with a return trip through the United States. This, it was felt, would balance reaction on both sides.

Less noticed was the likelihood that Mr. Attlee himself was taking some political risk in consorting on such a friendly basis with the Peiping regime. would inevitably be bound up to some extent with the future actions of Chou Chinese leaders could conceivably react on the Labor Party in the comment: "So this is the sort of people you hobnob

Injuring Partnership

And it could never be forgotten that no matter what advantages might derive from closer political and trade relations with the communists, these could never make up for any damage done to the vital partnership between Britain and the United States.

In any case, despite the most circumspect behavior by the British travelers, there was clear evidence that the Russians and Chinese were prepared to de rive the last drop of propaganda advantage possible from the visit. This aspec would be largely beyond Mr. Attlee's reach. Like the circus peprformer who thought he was in full control of the act. he could not prevent the lion from sneezing.—B. A. T.

Trigeminal Neuralgia

IN A FINE recent article, Drs. Henry W. Dodge and J. Grafton Love, of the Mayo Clinic, described tic douloureux, or trifacial neuralgia, and the new operation that Dr.

Love has perfected. Trige-minal neuralgia is generally found in elderly women who suffer from sudden short jabs of agonizing pain, felt usually in the lower half of the right side of the face. Only rarely does the pain affect both sides of the face. It feels like an electric shock, or a hot knife or wire being thrust into the tissues.

Dr. Alvarez

The pains tend to come in spells, and ometimes they are triggered by shaving or by washing the face, or chewing, or talking, or brushing the teeth or combing the hair. A draft of cold air may throw the person into a spasm of pain. The pain is usually so awful that the person is unable to eat much, and hence soon goes down to skin and bones. Sometimes one can make the diagnosis in a moment when a thin old lady comes in with her sad tired face wrapped

The pain is so bad that no medicine is able to control it. Often the first thing that is done by an expert is to inject alcohol into the affected branches of the nerve. At the Mayo Clinic the favorite site of injection of the alcohol is around two of the branches of the fifth nerve, as they come out at the base of the skull. With a successful injection the face becomes numb swollen and wooden, and stays that way for six me This injection is not easy to make. There are dangers attached to it, and hence it should be done only by someone who has first been well trained and then has performed the little operation scores of times, Relief may last for six months or, if the patient is lucky, it may last much longer

Often when the pain comes back in full force, the patient is willing to go ahead and have part of the nerve cut. Again, this is a difficult operation, and it must be done by an expert nerve surgeon. The incision is made usually in front of the ear: the brain on that side is lifted up a little, and the affected nerve is exposed.

In recent years it has been discovered that in many cases relief can be given simply by what is called decompressing the big ganglion on the fifth nerve together with its sensory root. As yet it is a mystery why this type of operation should relieve the pain. Sometimes the operation doesn't work, but if it doesn't, then the more serious one in which part of the nerve is cut can still

The tremendous advantage of the new op eration is that the side of the face is aleft anesthetic. What is important is the eye on the affected side is not left so anesthetic that the person doesn't know when dirt or grit or sand has got into it. The person who has no sensation in the eye is likely to lose it because of the inflamation.

One of the things that all persons should know is that when the awful agonizing jab of neuralgia come, it is useless to have all the teeth extracted. That rarely does any Another important point is that be fore the big operation is undertaken, the patient ought to see someone who knows trigeminal neuralgia so well that he can be sure of the diagnosis. Many of the bad results that one sees after operations can be explained by the fact that the patient didn't have a true tic douloureux, or true trigeminal neuralgia. He or she had a pain in the face due perhaps to a little stroke or some other disease inside the brain. I have seen cases of terrible pain in the face due to eating hot. food. In these cases a nerve had died in a tooth—under a filling. Heat caused gas to expand in the tooth, and this caused the

MAKE A MAN

Said one master recently "We are interested in the boys not just in teaching them scholtop-flight students, but if a youth doesn't finish among the top we don't mind, if we know we've made a man out of him.

"When a boy leaves our school, he is equipped, not just with an education, but with a character that makes him a solid, upstanding citizen for the his days.

"That is, if we've done our job properly."

Private schools for girls operate along the same lines, except that such things as homemaking, and other feminine arts are taught in place of subjects like woodworking and metalwork.

Students in both boys' and girls' private schools are en-couraged to take up a hobby. Everything from stamp-col-ecting and leatherwork to model-making and birdwatching.

Walking to School

THE COWICHAN LEADER

Imposition of a 21/2 mile bus limit for elementary children and of a three-mile limit for high school students and older elementary children is planned by the provincial department of education

Costs of transportation have apparently been mounting for years. The government has decided to arrest their flight. It is serving notice that, if transportation costs continue to climb greatly, the boards, not the government,

There has been no hard and fast system of walkingdistance limits enforced by boards in the past, it is learned. Failure on the part of boards to hew to the new line will incur the displeasure of municipal councils, whose members will undoubtedly recognize in the new measure of the department an attempt to afford some sort of financial relief to municipalities.

The government is right in enunciating again the principle that parents have some responsibility to see that their children reach a school. If the degree of isolation is too great the department will be willing to discuss dormitory or boarding assistance. At any rate, correspondence courses are always available.

It Is Good News

TWIN CITIES TIMES

An announcement by a cabinet minister in Victoria should be assurance enough that the long-awaited road to the West Coast is to be a reality within little over two

Despite some confusion over the report, we choose to regard it as the final word and join with hundreds of others in the area in repoicing over the good news.

Although the first announcement is reported to have been qualified and there has been a notable secrecy over the results of negotiations, there can be no doubt that an official with the standing of the Hon. R. E. Sommers would have given the matter most serious thought before

So, taking the West Coast road as assured, we express extreme pleasure in the news and forecast progress and a new era of prosperity for the Ucluelet Tofino area, with a decided benefit to the Alberni Valley.

Customs Outhouse of Sidney? REVIEW, SIDNEY

Some months ago The Review, in this column, asked a number of questions regarding international travel in this district. We asked for figures on the numbers of arrivals and departures to and from the United States from Sidney and North Saanich in relation to other customs centres on the Pacific Coast. Nothing but a stony silence has greeted our respectful inquiry.

Our point was that other centres, where amount of international travel is pitifully small, are served by customs ports. Although a customs building is located in Sidney and staffed by courteous civil servants, Sidney is not a customs port. Neither is it even a sub-port. Frankly, we don't know what it is.

Sidney should long ago have been a self-accounting customs port. Today it's not even a sub-port.

The Review is fully aware of the old adage which says: "If we haven't suffered enough, it is our God-given privi-lege to suffer some more." Ottawa should know, however, that residents of this district are now thoroughly con-

IS YOUR CAR AILING?

The heroine, Mrs. Betsey Jordan, at the age of 28 is left the widow of the shiftless landlord of the "Bunch of Roses," a small country inn typical of England in the 1850s.

Saddled with his debts and four young children, she de-cides to re-enter domestic serv-ice, her occupation prior to marriage. She determines, however, that she will be satisfied with nothing less than a position as housekeeper to a socially prominent family and finds herself installed in that position to the squire of Pack-enden Court in Kent.

Unfortunately the squire has deteriorated into a slovenly ed deteriorated into a slovenly ec-centric and allowed his estate to become thoroughly rundown while he spends his time drink-ing gin with his scheming dis-honest butler-cum-estate agent.

TRULY DICKENSIAN

The means adopted by Mrs. Betsey to rehabilitate both the squire and the estate form fascinating thread around which much of the book is written. She is assisted by Harry Harty, a truly Dickensian character whom she first encounters of the coach as she leaves the "Bunch of Roses" and who later shows up at Packenden Court as the answer to her search for a reliable manseryant to the Tonight, at 9.30, over station CBU, Vancouver, you may hear, if you wish, a half-hour broadcast concert by the Victoria Symphony Orchestra, which will be carried over the Trans-Canada network of the CBC. It will not be a "live" broadcast, but rather a tape recording taken during the final subscription concert at the Royal Theatre last March.

This will be the second time since last year that the CBC have arranged for us to be heard coast-to-coast. To be sure, this broadcast. To be sure, this broadcast, as a last year series in which those Canadian orchestras a re given a chance to let the rest of the country hear what they are doing which do Gruber not regularly play over the air, as do the orchestras in Toronto, Montreal, Vancouver and Winnipeg. Indians Don't Doubt It's True, Just Want Proof

Jack Bionda of the Shamrocks rifled a shot through the net in Friday night's Intercity Lacrosse League playoff game at Memorial Arena. Indians protested mildly at the time but referees Bill Dickinson and Sid Greenwood examined the evidence and allowed the goal to stand. Larry Crema, left, apparently didn't believe it, but Indians' goalie Stan Joseph, centre, Gordie Nickle (8) and Alf Brenner (10) seem convinced. The Shamrock present is Jack Northup who volunteered his assistance to the officials. Rocks won the game 10-6. (Times Photo by Strickland.)

IT'S MY VIEW

By BILL WALKER, Sports Editor

The wrappings come off the big experiment at Empire Stadium in Vancouver tonight. And not to be caught napping at home by any surprises that may pop off with the lid, upwards of 20,000 football and would be football fans are expected to jam

Coach Annis Stukus and his B.C. Lions officially go on show for the first time in the Western Interprovincial Football

Union and what they've really got below the layer of tinsel is still a mystery.

Two exhibition games failed to produce a victory, but that means little now. Everything from here in is for keeps.

It's been a long and winding road for the Lions, who have probably already won more battles off the field than they hope to win on the turf this inaugural season.

The original die was cast back in the year 1950 when a small group of cleated fans wormed sort of a half-promise out of the WIFU that the real west might be tolerated in football if they had something else to offer besides words.

This simmering hope suddenly burst into flame three years later, when, to the consternation of the WIFU, the energetic ncouver group suddenly made their franchise bid official. That's when the Lions got hit with the first series of bodyblocks they hope to start tossing back at their original detrac-

Sure, they were told, the WIFU would be glad to have Van-couver in the league, provided Lions would pick up the tab. The Lions were then told to get themselves a stadium, at least 7.500 fans, and guarantee the prairie teams the extra trav-

Then Stuke Took Over

That's when Annis Stukus was hired as coach.

The reason was obvious. Annis was used to starting from ratch as he had previously built Edmonton into a football ower in three years and, having been a player himself, had an intimate knowledge of the game and especially of Canadian

The stadium was assured by the staging of the British Empire Games in Vancouver this past summer. Meanwhile, the mainland sporting public rallied to the cause of a sport few had seen; or were likely to know much about, except what they had read of it in the papers.

With Vancouver officially in the WIFU, league moguls then immediately battened the hatches of the constitution they all had flouted in the past. Thus when Stuke went prying for players he found most of the Canadians under lock and key. Bowing and scraping were of little use, as other clubs naturally thought first of themselves and virtually regarded the up-

Greenbacks—What Else?

Still, Stuke managed to snare a couple of home-brew stars and, by utilizing the only means known to footballers today, wiggled greenbacks under the noses of others, until today the Lions have a football team.

But even now the Lions' troubles aren't over. The club is and has been embroiled in lawsuits and threats of lawsuits over some of the players. So far they have managed to win all such legal skirmishes, giving rise to the thought that the package they'll put on the shelf tonight is pure of litigation.

At least the B.C. football public is ready to buy it. Further modifications may become necessary from time to time, but, already being saleable, it shouldn't be long before the Lionshave a best seller on their hands.

LANDY ILL; PROPOSED MILE RACE UNLIKELY

BERNE, Switzerland (Reuters)—Australia's John Landy, the world's fastest miler, has been ill here but his indisposition has been kept a close secret.

It did not become generally known until he was being sought to ascertain his reaction to a possible contest with West Santee and Britain's Roger Bannister in the mile event of the Australian championships next February.

Such a race is unlikely. Landy himself is uncertain of his plans when he returns to Australia, or whether he will be able to spare the time.

Bannister, a doctor, feels he cannot afford the time for further running this season.

Landy is here watching the European Games.
Two days ago he went to bed with suspected mumps but officials said today that Landy had been suffering from a cold and is up now.

Little Care With Gypsum Does Nice Job

Two-ply gypsum wallboard astruction is an up-and-coming development of interest to the building industry and the many home owners who are fin ishing off their attics and base ments; and doing the work by themselves.

It's an interesting wall and the panels can be installed by anyone who knows his way around a workshop. This isn't way to equal plaster walls in appearance. It simply calls for careful workmanship.

vo-ply gypsum construction: First, the base-layer panels are nailed to wall studding and ceiling joists. Then the face ply is cross-laminated to the tirst ply with a special adhesive called joint cement. Finally, joints between panels are concealed, OUIZZING THE GARDENER using the same cement and special perforated paper tape.

QUICKLY AND EASILY

The wallboard itself goes up fairly quickly and easily, especially if two good men are on the job. First and face plies both consist of %-inch gypsum board, resulting in a wall %-inch thick. Briefly, this is how you would install two-ply gyp-sum wallboard:

First ply is nailed to the ceiling with 13-gauge, cooler type, uncoated nails 1% inches long,

Adhesive for second ply is be sure to submit two representative specimens of each kind on package and spread on back of fruit because it is often will soon ruin them. side of each panel with a necessary to cut one specimen notched trowel. Adhesive must to determine the texture and extend to extreme edges of color of the flesh, and to sample extend to extreme edges of panels. Second-ply panels should be applied at right angles to first-ply panels. If first ply on side walls is applied vertically, the second ply should be horizontal.

Color of the flesh, and to sample the flavor, before positive identification can be made. It is a with the second ply should be horizontal.

A—Camellias are one of the buds and flowers are damaged by spring frosts. The buds and flowers are less susceptible than others. It is a matter the canvas type soil-soakers.

PERMANENT NAILING

Press second ply tightly, but not too tightly, against the first. The most common method of securing the face layer to the base layer is by permanent nailing, with nails spaced 12 inches apart on ceiling joists and le inches apart over wall studs. Nail heads should be flush with surface. After cement has set and hardened, drive each na deeper until heads rest in slight depressions or dimples. Joint rement later conceals nails.

In concealing joints, use five-inch broad knife to apply cement into the channel formed by the tapered or recessed edges of boards. Mix cement to puttyconsistency. - Then imbe reinforcing tape into cement, pressing firmly with broad knife, and remove excess cement. Cover the tape with thin layer of cement.

When first cement coating has dried, sand lightly where necessary to remove roughness and apply another coating of cement, feathering it out on cement, feathering it out on both sides of recess, leaving it as smooth as possible. When dry, again sand lightly and apply final coating, feathering out beyond the second coat. It rough spots remain after final fine sandpaper. Give nailheads three separate treatments of joint cement also and sand

How many rungs has Madder's ladder?

STICKY POSER TO SOLVE When a retired molasses maker died, he left instructions that his remaining store of mo-lasses was to be divided equally among his three sons. The storehouse was found to contain seven barrels full of molasses, seven barrels half-full and seven empty barrels.

It was impractical to pour any molasses from one barrel to another. Furthermore, each son insisted on receiving at least two of the empty barrels

Drunk Driver Tells Why Gasoline, Alcohol Are Expensive Mixture

You motorists who get a skinful of liquor and then climb behind the wheel of a car should take a tip from m before it is too late.

I've been through the mill and know that if you mix the brain-muddling stuff with gasoline you're riding for a ... a great big crash.

L'm just a plain Joe who liked his liquor and had kidded himself into believing grief from drinking driving "can't Appen to me."

Oh. I was extremely lucky. I got into some accidents, none serious. And I was fortunate enough on these occasions not to have had too many drinks (or at least not to show it). So the police didn't jug me.

I did not take these incidents as a warning to smarten up. Each time, after a few days of taking it easy (liquor-wise) I shrugged off these "little things" and continued on my drinking-driving way

And then the boom dropped on me starting to drive home. Then everything went blank. I'd gone to sleep at the wheel.

The car went out of control, careened across the street, vaulted the curb, hit a telephone pole and crashed over on as I was being escorted into the police station

I wound up behind bars. I was booked for impaired driving, the lesser charge for driving while intoxicated. An hour or so later a couple of friends bailed me out.

They were hopeful that I wasn't really "that bad"; called a doctor to look me over. The doc gave me one searching survey. His verdict was: "I certainly wouldn't let him about $600. They were apparently within their rights. They won't foot the bill when the driver has an accident because he is impaired or worse. (Read the small print on the back of your policy. I didn't until after.) I got $350 for what was left of the car.

I was given a partial suspension of driving privileges. I was grateful for the latter. But there was a lot more before I got my head above water in this mess.

The B.C. Motor Vehicle Branch sent me a personal letter. It said I couldn't get back on the road until I could show them some company had insured me for financial

My insurance company refused to have anything m to do with me. Another company came to my rescue. My name was sent before a board of insurance chiefs and my driving record carefully perused (they've got it all down at the motor vehicle branch). One insurance man got his company to take a chance on me. I was put on the "assigned with" and the state of the risk" rolls. I got a policy for "PL and PD" only, which covers you up to $10,000 for injuring other persons and $1,000 property damage. It doesn't cover injuries to those in your car or damage to the car

The policy cost me $113-much more than my former year after. If my record remains good I'll likely be returned to the normal price after that.

Before I'm in the clear the cost of that "bad moment" will be in the neighborhood of $1,000.

There's really an awful lot more to it than what I have told you. There's the newspaper publicity, for instance. The average man can take this in his stride, but it hits the wife pretty hard (gossipy neighbors, etc., you know) . . . and by the way the missus has been a gold brick all the way through this rough period.

I, am not a cop-hater because they jailed me and was forced to face the magistrate for the first time in my life. Looking back on it with a sane and sober eye, it's plain I wasn't a safe gamble on the road in a liquorized state.

I am trying to quit drinking now. I have enlisted help. My sincere hope is that others who read what I have gone through will take it to heart-and bear in mind that my troubles were a mere drop in the bucket to what others have suffered for the same thing.

BETWEEN TIMES

By MONTE ROBERTS

Poor old Victoria, which has been losing its status as B.C. capital in a wide assortment of publications, has been insulted again.

This time the perpetrator of injustice is a United States advertising agency advertising agency.

The agency has sent a team of photographers to this city, with the commendable purpose of photographing beautiful women against beautiful Victoria backgrounds.

This objective is to be applauded. But what is to be deplored is the agency's action in sending along four beautiful women from California to appear in the pictures.

The implication is clear. The advertising agency obviously believes we have no beautiful women of our own.

This is nothing less than an insult to the women of Victoria.

I have nothing against beautiful California women, b if they must be photographed, let them be photographed in California.

Perhaps the government could arrange a stiff tariff barrier against the importation of beautiful women.

Meanwhile, George Warren nad better hurry up and write a stiff letter of protest to somebody.

Incidentally, my Favorite Wife has the answer to all the confusion about Victoria not being the capital of B.C. She says it is very simple. Victoria hasn't yet been dis-

MFW suggests the publicity bureau insert a small adver-tisement in the Explorer's Journal, offering a suitable induce-ment for the first intrepid soul to land on our shores, and thus put us on the map.

She thinks this would be a capital idea.

A rather dejected Notice to Shipping, issued vesterday,

"Mariners are advised that a considerable amount of debris is floating around in Howe Sound and are cautioned to be on the lookout for this potential danger to navigation."

It occurs to me the proper authorities should make a check-up along the Victoria waterfront.

Is it possible one of our garbage scows is missing?

Cheerful parting thought: Only 119 more days to Christ-

Catherine, 17; Suzanne, 13 years of age, and Marilyn, 15, left to right, are the teen age daughters of Dr. and Mrs. W. A. McElmoyle, 1509 Rockland Avenue. They are interested in sports of all kinds and have been trained to help in cooking and housekeeping. Recently their mother broke a bone in her ankle and they tell you proudly they have "taken over" the running of the McElmoyle home for the present. Catherine has decided on a career of laboratory technician, but Suzanne and Marilyn are still trying to make up their minds about their life work. This summer the sisters had a special treat when they accompanied their parents to Lake Windermere for a month's vacation. They attend Victoria High School and St. Margaret's School.

SHOPPING GUIDE

English Sweater Blouses Look Expensive, But Are Not By PENNY SAVER

I've been caught by the sale bug again. Woe is me . . . I simply can't resist! But, then, I can always console myself with the knowledge that by buying, I'm saving. There, I feel better already.

After all, I couldn't pass up such a bargain. Think of it: fine, soft, English wool sweater blouses selling at $5.95. Mine's a light, mottled grey, the front having stripes of pale yellow, darker Oxford grey and white, which meet in V's at centre giving a very slimming illusion. I might add. The blouse has dolman sleeves and the rolled, ribbed neckline fits snugly. The way the English finish their garments so perfectly always deserves admiration, and this case is no exception. The back opening zipper is sewn in so carefully that it's practically invisible and two unseen holes and everywhere exercise. and two unseen hooks and eyes make certain the top is safely and two unseen nooks and eyes make certain the top is safely fastened. Seams are whipped, too.

But you don't have to settle for one like mine. Only background colors to choose from are light grey and dark grey, but there are many different-colored stripes in the pleasing combinations.

Speaking about the English reminds me about the teapots I saw the other day. A local store just received a big shipment of them—big ones, little ones, medium-sized ones; in fact, almost any size teapot you could want. These aren't fancy china teapots, but the good old-fashioned "Brown Bettys" that make such perfect tea. And, mentioning size, you get free tea with your teapot, depending upon the size you buy.

depending upon the size you buy.

For example, if you buy the tiny, single cup teapot, which sells at 49 cents, you get a free bag of tea. If you buy the two-cup size you get two free tea bags, and so on, up to the largest teapot, which sells at $3.69.

Those embroidered Chinese scuff slippers, so popular and so reasonably priced, are now being seen in local stores with white fur trim. Makes quite a difference to their appearance. They're much more luxurious-looking now, and price is still low: $1.98.

IN STEP WITH STYLE

Jill Pinniger, 16, is ready for dating in her turquoise velvet jumper dress with fashionable Empire waist-line. Worn with a blouse or sweater, the jumper doubles for school wear. Right, Peggy Standen, 15, models a capeskin jacket and a Douglas tartan skirt. The jacket is white, but Peggy will have no trouble keeping it clean. It can be wiped clean in a minute with a damp cloth. Lining is temperature-controlled

"Double Duty" is the key word to fall fashlon for the soda set, those younger teeners, whose clothes budget is depressingly small at first glance. Careful planning, however, can brighten the situation. By selecting color-right separates that mix and match and buying a jumper dress that, when worn with blouses or sweaters does for school wear, then doubles as a date dress when worn without, you can quadruple your wardrobe's potentialities.

Carefully examine your last your basic shades for this year's wardrobe, to determine by predominating colors what your dissides shades for this year's mardrobe, to determine by predominating colors what your last your basic shades for this year should be. Then buy new clothes that not necessarily match but combine pleasingly with what you already have.

should be. Then buy new clothes that not necessarily match but combine pleasingly with what you already have. Easy now . . . save those very bright colors for accessories, for you cannot hope to have a well ballanced wardrobe of reds, brilliant blues and chartreuses. You will want these colors for accessories for accent, though, so "go native" with a gay silk scarf or a pair of cotton string gloves, instead. "The tweedy look" destined for popularity in high fashion circles this fall. is for the tenenr, too. It's a smart gal who would buy a tweed suit-sim skirt, boxy jacket — as basic for her fall wardrobe. Both skirt and topper mix readily with plain-color separates, lending endless variety to school ensembles.

WHY GROW OLD?

BY JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

No Room to Exercise? These Will Do the Job

Many women write to say that they do not take exercises because they do not have space in which to take them. It is true that many of the most valuable exercises do take quite a lot of space, more than we realize until we have to move the furniture about in even a fairly large room. A small apartment or cottage may represent a problem.

When the weather is good go out into your backyard and

Mendes-France Calls

PARIS (Reuters)—Premier Pierre Mendes-France de-clared tonight that France must not fall back on "shuffling and procrastination" in deciding her attitude to the European army plan.

His statement was interpreted here as revealing his opposition to the proposal that the National Assembly should again defer a decision on the European Defense Community instead of voting on it early next week.

(Compiled From UP and AP Dispatches)

PARIS-A bitterly-divided French National Assembly finally began debate on the proposed European Defense Community today with opponents taking the floor to hold up the spectre of German troops on French soil and the loss of some French sovereignty.
